*Musician Blurb:

This rendition of Toriel's iconic theme, Heartbreak, assumes darker tones by applying the original composition with deep bass and electronically generated instruments a la the Harmor plugin. The piece utilizes these tropes to envision a metaphorical "Genocide route Toriel," showing her discarding of trust in humankind and unleashing her full powers to defend the Underground.

ENTRY NUMBER 10. I've been trapped in this laboratory for a few days now. I'm not sure how long I'll be able to survive on a diet of potato chisps alone. Luckily, I've been able to pass the time by banging out tunes on the piano I skillfully crafted out of [REDACTED]. This particular tune is inspired by the hushed whispering of the blobbish figures that lurk in the lab's darker corners. Enjoy!

*Musician Blurp:

VOID MODE is intended as a theme for Dr. W.D. Gaster that begins upbeat with elements of the hidden tracks in the sound test Fun event, and gradually integrates sounds that are more dissonant, glitchy, and bizarre, utilizing Gaster's voice blips from the game as part of the beat as if it were distorted communication attempts from the void itself.

The wind is howling...

Determination.

For the second UAP, I wanted to depart from the softness of my last tracks and try something new—a no mercy song. Undying/Undying is about the no mercy Undyne fight from Chara's perspective. Two determined beings, a single ultimate outcome. It is nothing if not unfair.

Thanks to Psithurist and Adrastéa Gihaly for their input on this song c:

*Musician Blurb:

This track began as a piano improvisation, vaguely inspired by Undyne and her battle theme. Eventually, I was inspired to turn it into this - a song about young Undyne training with Asgore, before she became the head of the Royal Guard! I tried to use instruments and a style reminiscent of Undyne's theme, as well as leitmotifs from the game. Part of Asgore's theme makes an appearance, as well as a hidden leitmotif from Undyne's theme. See if you can find it!

kalinel

kalinel.deviantart.com

*Musician Blurb:

Tra la la. Did you ever hear the old song coming from the sea?" A theme for one of the more mysterious characters in Undertale. I started out with a simple three time melody that might be something you'd idly sing along to as you row down a stream, contemplating men who speak in hands and the number of pairs of pants you're wearing and whatnot. I almost didn't get this done in time for the album. But then I did. True story. I missed out on having a full track on the first volume, so I'm glad I was able to finish this up. And remember: dancing on a boat is dangerous. But good exercise...

*Musician Blurp:

I've always found the "passing conversation" you hear from the echo flowers in Waterfall to be a really moving detail, and I wanted to try and capture a feeling of wistful hope in this song inspired by the two wishing monsters and my favorite area in the game.

There aren't lyrics exactly, but a small portion of the "passing conversation" text from the game is spoken aloud in the song.

"Someday, I'd like to climb this mountain we're all buried under. Standing under the sky, looking at the world all around..."

That's my wish."

"[Laughter]. Sorry, it's just funny. That's my wish too."

*Musician Blurb:

Surfacing is about what it sounds like the monsters entering the surface world. This more goes into the wonder of the sun and the openness of the sky. Seeing all that for the first time is probably a eye opening experience to say the least this is why it changes from a sine wave spooky lead to various calmer sounding acoustic instruments. The ending signifies that they're adventure is still far from over. There are still mysteries on the surface waiting to be discovered.

nikniak
nikniak.tumblr.com/

*Musician Blurb:

This is a little song to capture a bit of the peace that the monsters enjoy on the surface. Not everything sound entirely happy because, hey, that's life. It was weird writing in a major key since I'm so used to minor keys. I also looked a bit more into music theory to write this song. This song is also purely stings 'cause even though my true love is the piano, I've got a thing for sting.

SPIDER TRANCE

*song by:

The Black Box
soundcloud.com/iodbc

*art by:

Artistotel
artistotel.tumblr.com

*Musician Blurb:

This song borrows intensively from the original theme of Muffet, "Spider Dance," but spins it with a pseudo trap beat, signified by heavy bass and deep kicks, and a much slower pace than its origins. This project began as a replacement from an older submission track, with an attempt to deviate as far as possible from the source material while retaining signature elements of the inspiration. In this, the method arrives from the change in instrumental methodology.

THEIR THEME

*art by:

starcipher

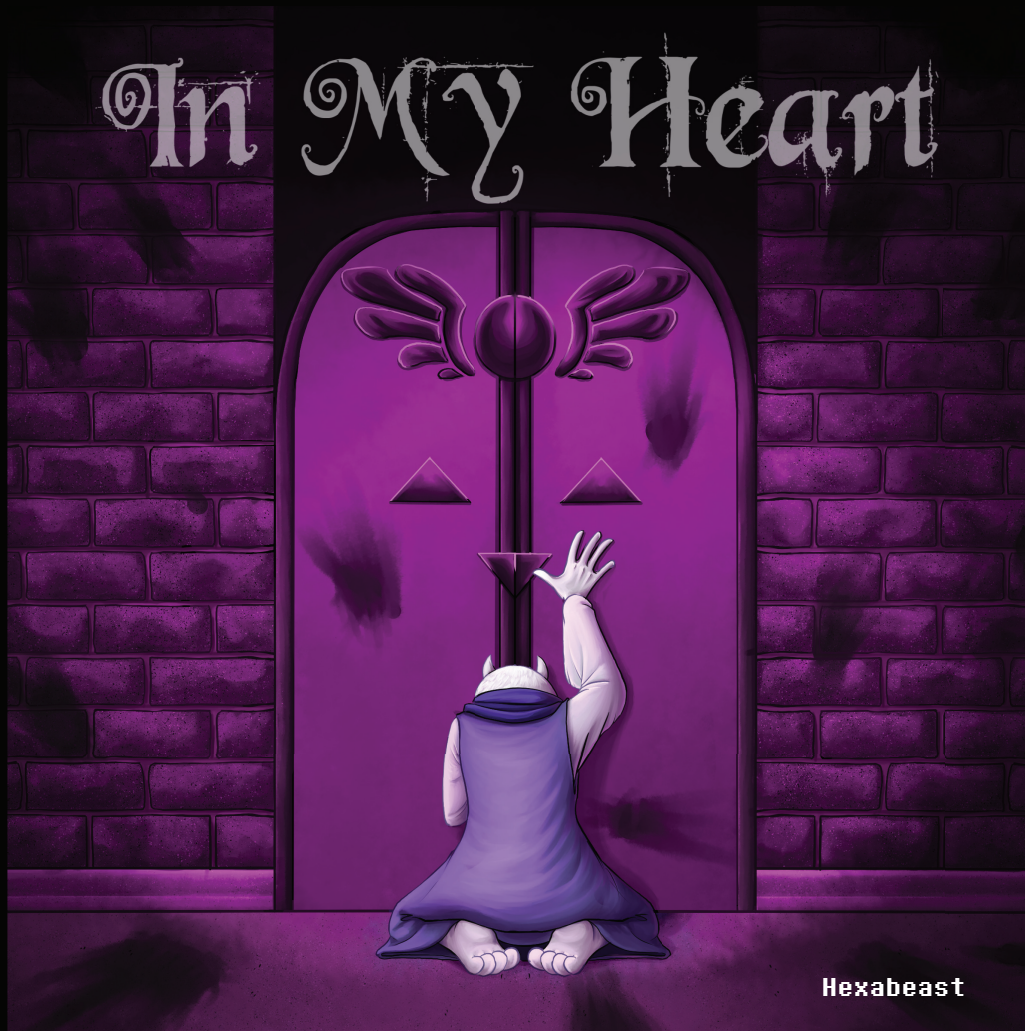

starcipher.tumblr.com

*Musician Blurb:

This track was inspired by a pacifist Chara interpretation, something I am a huge supporter of. I wanted to emphasize who Chara was in life - a child who climbed Mt. Ebbot for an unhappy reason, who was described as having a look of hope in their eyes, and who, most importantly, was Asriel's best friend. This song uses themes from the game's soundtrack - "Once Upon A Time" and "His Theme," as well as an unused track from the game files called "Star."
